PM backlog is defined as the count of PM work orders that are greater than 30 days past their target start date. Overall, the backlog trend is remaining steady over the last 3 months, with the exception of Zone 1, which is showing a steady increase over the last month. Further analysis into the cause of this increase and the disparity to the other Zones is ongoing.
PM backlog is defined as the count of PM work orders that are greater than 30 days past their target start date. Overall, the backlog trend is remaining steady over the last months with the exception of Zone 1, which is showing a steady increase. Further analysis into the cause of this increase and the disparity to the other Zones is ongoing.
PM backlog is defined as the count of PM work orders that are greater than 30 days past their target start date. Overall the backlog trend is remaining steady over the last few months, with the exception of Zone 1, which is showing a steady increase over the last month. Further analysis into the cause of this increase and the disparity to the other Zones is ongoing.